

Abstract

The use of polysaccharides, such as galactomannans, glucomannans and the like, for introducing active substances into the human or animal metabolism is described. The vital substances, individually or as a complex, are embedded separately and in each case functionally separated from one another in a plant-based matrix of the polysaccharide.